Family VINCENT Records

Twenty-five years ago, while I was in college, I developed an interest in learning about by family history. My great-aunt Gladys (GRIER) VINCENT, a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, had a wealth of information that whet my appetite and I was quickly infected with the 'genealogy bug'. Over the next ten years I invested many hours in libraries researching my ancestors. My biggest interest was with the my Vincent line. I found that working on the surname, Vincent, was satisfying. It was not so common a name that I was inundated with information, but it was common enough so that I could search the genealogical libraries and find enough references to make it worthwhile. Whenever I came across any reference to a Vincent, I would record it. The collection of information in now spread out over numerous hand-written notebooks, and files filled with xerographic copies.

For this collection of information to be useful to Vincent family researchers, I have wanted to put it into a form that could be easily accessed. It has only been recently that I have developed a computer capability to generate a database. This publication is the first edition of what I hope will ultimately be a much more complete listing of the information that is available in the genealogical literature on the Vincent family. My first thought was to wait until this was all completed, but at the current rate of finding time for inputting data, I am a good many years from having it completed. So I will start with this First Edition, so that the data-base information can become available for other Vincent Family researchers at key genealogical libraries. With an intention of yearly editions, it will hopefully motivate me to the task of organizing and inputting data for the future editions. I estimate that this publication with about 4000 references represents about 20% of the total data that I have accumulated. So there is certainly more to this task to make it complete.

The publication is only being printed in very limited copy for several key library collections. If researchers desire a copy of the current edition, they will be duplicated by xerographic means on demand. A contribution of $30 toward the cost of preparation, including shipping and handling, will be appreciated.

If you are researching Vincent's, I hope that you will find this useful in your research to make connections with other places and people that might be your 'missing link'. If in your research you have come across other references that you would like to send for inclusion in the full index, please feel free to contribute it. I will certainly credit all contributions. Feel free to correspond with questions also, one of the more powerful aspects of a database is the searching capability. If you want to know about references, for instance, for John Vincent's in Pennsylvania, the search criteria can be set to pick them out of all of the data for more careful review or if there is a particular city or town, that can also be used as a search criteria. Unfortunately, in this index, that capability is lost, since only one of the fields can be alphabetized at a time.

Best of Luck in your genealogical research!

Comments on the Database Organization

The layout and design of a database can take many forms. In the database copied on the following pages, the design considered the final published form to try to maximize the amount of information in the minimum of space. It was also considered that the information found would be considerably different in the various sources, making it difficult to have many fields of information. This problem was solved by using a general category of 'Comment' that described much of the information specific to the source.

It should also be recognized that this publication is not meant to replace the publications containing the information. The purpose is to direct the researcher to the source, where there is likely to be additional information beyond that is described in the database. There is also a caution that is necessary to consider in any database. While care has been taken to accurately copy the information, errors are possible. The copying of information from an old book is somewhat tedious and the chance of an error in this environment is certainly possible, therefore, the original source should always be checked to verify the accuracy of the data. There is often additional information related to the family of interest in the information contained in the source, yet another reason to track it down.

A brief description of each of the data fields in the database follows:

Source # This is the key to the database describing a 'code' to the source reference. The key to the source number is listed on pages immediately following this introduction on pages i. to v.

Surname The surnames are split into two groups: related surnames other than VINCENT and those that are VINCENT or a close variation thereof. Generally variations such as VINSENT, VINCEN, VENCENT, were collected and input to the database. Variations such as VINSON, VANZANT were not included, although there are some exceptions. All variations of VINCENT spelling were alphabetized by the first name.

First Name This database publication is sorted alphabetically by the first name.

Middle Name Since not all references include a middle name or initial, this data field was not sorted. This allows common names such as John VINCENT to be sorted complete in a chronological order.

Date There are often several dates associated with an individual in the source. In this data field, the earliest date found in the source for an individual is listed. If the record describes a birth year, it is listed, if the record is a marriage or death date, that is listed. Check the Comments field for a more detailed description of the date. The data in this field is sorted chronologically. When no date is indicated in the source information, this field is blank, and the individual will be listed at the beginning of the list for those individuals of the same first name.

Place Again, when several places are mentioned, the place for the earliest date is usually what is listed in this database field.

State When several states are mentioned, the state associated with the earliest date is usually what is listed in this database field. Countries, rather than state, are also listed in this field. The data in this field is sorted alphabetically. When no state is indicated in the source data, this field is blank, and the individual will be listed at the beginning of the list for those individuals of the same first name.

Comment Various miscellaneous information from the source publication is input to this data field. Note that a colon punctuation has a particular meaning. For example son:John would indicate the person indicated in the index was the son of John, the colon should be read as 'of'. A designation son John, would indicate the indicated person had a son John.
